Introduction

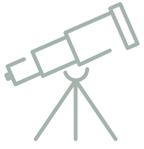

“We want this Kingdom, now and fifty years from now, God willing, to be a source of emanation for humanity and peace” – King Faisal bin Abdulaziz (1975)

In 1983/1403AH, eight years after the martyrdom of King Faisal (May God have mercy on him), King Faisal Center for Research and Islamic Studies (KFCRIS) was established by King Faisal Foundation (KFF) with the aim to continue with the mission of late King to transmit knowledge between the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia and the rest of the world. Since then, KFCRIS has been serving as a leading academic, intellectual and cultural hub.

The Center’s main role is to provide a knowledge platform, bringing together local, regional, and global researchers and research organizations to produce original research in the humanities and social sciences and engage in intellectual discussion and intercultural dialogues. Moreover, its missions are not only limited to research, but the Center fulfills diverse roles ranging from publishing house and library to archives and museum.

Al-Faisal Cultural House, the Center’s publication arm, publishes books and periodicals that explore themes and topics important to the Kingdom, Arab and Muslim societies, and the world. King Faisal Center Library offers various services to assist researchers. Faisal Family Archives preserves and raises awareness of the legacies of late King Faisal and his family. Al-Faisal Museum for Arab-Islamic Art conserves and showcases the valuable collections of Arab Islamic arts, rare manuscripts, and the memory of late King Faisal.

Vision

To be a wellspring of academic, intellectual, and cultural knowledge for humanity

Message

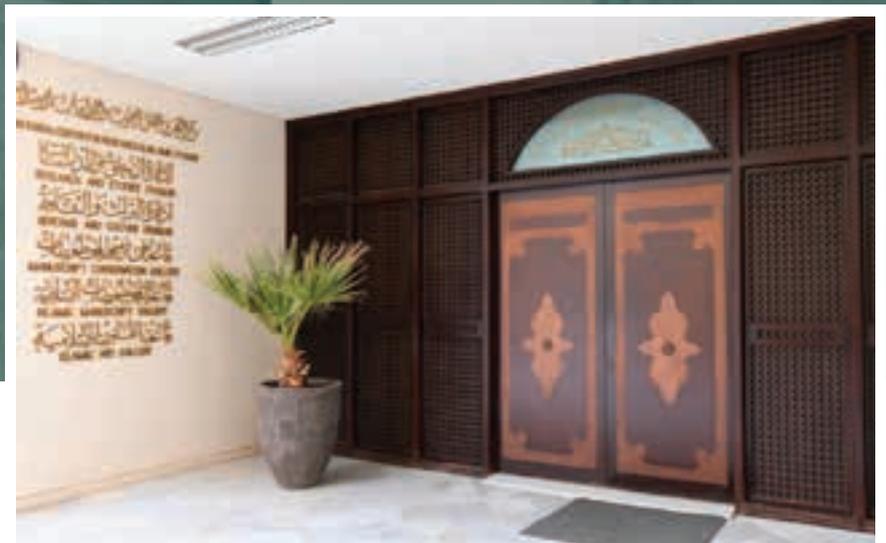

To enrich the local and global academic and cultural scenes with original research, excellent resources, and unique experiences

Values

To disseminate knowledge, facilitate academic research, and preserve our human heritage

Five-Year Strategic Goals

2021-25

HRH Prince Turki AlFaisal, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the King Faisal Center for Research and Islamic Studies, affirmed that the 2021-25 strategic plan constitutes a roadmap for the Center for the coming five years, developed in collaboration with the Center's various departments and their constituent sections. This plan has been developed with the aim of furthering the Center's objectives of enriching the local and global cultural and intellectual scenes with original research and unique resources and expertise.

The last six months have been preoccupied with evaluating what has been accomplished in the period since the last five-year plan was adopted. Both the opportunities and the obstacles that have confronted the Center in meeting its strategic goals have been studied using a fourfold method of analysis. This has been done to enhance the current five-year plan so that the Center may continue to enjoy its position of leadership in the fields of academic research and cultural studies, as well as in the preservation and raising of awareness of our heritage.

The new strategic plan focuses on the communication and further strengthening of the Center's threefold mission, so that it may continue to foster the legacy of the late King Faisal (God have mercy on him) and his sons. The plan will help to ensure that the Center retains its premier status as a platform for knowledge and cultural exchange, so that it remains a constant and ever-renewing site for the preservation and dissemination of awareness of the riches of our heritage.

In terms of the Center's mission and its execution, the new strategic plan has addressed a number of fundamental points for the immediate future. In terms of clients, the plan focuses on enhancing the Center's intellectual and cultural output, as well as continuing to increase its strategic partnerships and opportunities for collaboration and knowledge exchange. In terms of business procedures and remaining abreast of current technical developments, the strategic plan has addressed the need to optimize the work environment and to expand digitalization. The most important element of this goal is the continued professional development and capacity-enhancement of employees.

The strategic plan has further emphasized, from the financial perspective, the importance of maximizing budgetary and operational efficiency, as well as continuing the careful investment of the Center's material and knowledge resources with the aim of ensuring healthy returns.

Looking back over 2021

HRH Prince Turki AlFaisal Chairman

This year marks the fortieth anniversary of the establishment of the King Faisal Center for Research and Islamic Studies, presenting us with a number of challenging questions about the Center's progress: namely, has it achieved its founding objective? Has it stood firm amidst the fierce competition between research centers across the world? How has it met the challenges posed by the ongoing pandemic, given that many institutions have in this context proved unable to fulfil their missions?

The following Review, which we present to the reader, answers these questions (among others), questions which researchers interested in the Center will be keen to have answers to. It informs the reader about how the Center has continued to move forward, notwithstanding various challenges, and how it has contributed—by dint of considerable effort—to our country's continued cultural and intellectual development.

In the course of 2021:

Prince Turki published a new book entitled The Afghanistan File. The book recalls his service as Director-General of the General Intelligence Directorate (GID), Saudi Arabia's main foreign intelligence organization, and tells the story of Saudi-Afghan relations from the time of the Soviet invasion in 1979 to the 9/11 incident in 2001. Beginning with the Saudi Arabian backing of the Mujahideen in their fight against Soviet occupation, the story looks into the peace initiatives made in vain. It also addresses the Taliban rise to power and the shelter given to Osama Bin Laden. The book came in a timely manner in the wake of the Taliban's return to power in Afghanistan in August 2021. The book was originally published in English with Arabian Publishing based in the United Kingdom and the KFCRIS (Al-Faisal Cultural House) published its Arabic version in the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia.

A sure approach and an unyielding resolve

Mr Turki Al-Shuwaier Acting Secretary-General

Perhaps the most important thing distinguishing the King Faisal Center for Research and Islamic Studies in its journey to fulfil its vision is its possession of a sure approach in pursuit of that end. Thus, its plans do not change with the change of its personnel; rather, it continues to pursue its vision with an unyielding resolve. Its method is one of intellectual innovation and performative creativity. The Center's human capital enjoys unparalleled concord, in circumstances of unprecedented intellectual, cultural and technical development. It is these circumstances that have allowed the Center to take its rightful place among the eminent research institutions of the world, which adopt a clear mission, carefully defined goals, and a sure vision.

This Review that we present to the reader for the year 2021 is the first to be issued as part of the strategic plan that will unfold over the next five years (2021–25), which the Center will implement to fulfil the vision for which it was established. This Review represents the tip of the proverbial iceberg in terms of what the Center hopes to work to achieve in the coming years, by virtue of our collective effort and the outstanding talent on which the Center draws. The renaissance which we ardently wish our country to achieve deserves nothing less than our very best efforts, which we gladly offer for the sake of our dear nation.

Research Programs

Research Programs

The KFCRIS conducts in-house research and attracts contributions from external researchers. At the end of 2021, it hosted five research programs (called “units” until October 2021): Cultural Studies, Socioeconomics, African Studies, Asian Studies, and Yemen Studies. The Yemen Studies Program is a new program established in 2021.

Cultural Studies Program

The Cultural Studies Program advances research that focuses on culture and cultural policies and the way they interact with broader social and political contexts. It adopts a broad definition of culture that includes identity, discourses, and cultural practices as well as creative cultural production. It aims to contribute to a deeper understanding of cultural change at the local, regional, and global levels, and to raise the quality of public debates concerning cultural policies. The Program is currently focusing on its work for the Ministry of Culture’s “Report on the State of Culture in the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia” project.

Socioeconomics Program

The Socioeconomics Program highlights the development of contemporary socioeconomic issues, concepts, and theories. In addition, it aims to study the significance of socioeconomic issues for specific societies and/or constituencies, with emphasis on Saudi Arabia, the Gulf states and the wider Arab and Muslim worlds. The Unit encourages interdisciplinary approaches, encompassing socioeconomic, sociopolitical, and sociocultural topics and issues in order to provide a broader picture as well as a nuanced analysis of the questions arising from the intersection between economies and societies.

African Studies Program

The African Studies Program specializes in affairs in the African continent. The Program examines political, strategic, cultural, economic, and social issues by bringing together multiple specializations and analyzing domestic dynamics and intra-regional relations.

Asian Studies Program

The Asian Studies Program is dedicated to the study of Asia and Asian societies. As one of the regionally-specialized programs, it aims to promote greater understanding of Asia within the Gulf and the wider Arab world. It also seeks to enhance the quality of academic, journalistic, and policy-making coverage and discussions surrounding Asia and its complex relationships with Saudi Arabia and the broader Middle East (alternatively identified as West Asia). It is also intended to build connections with other Asia-focused research institutions and think-tanks around the world.

Yemen Studies Program

The Yemen Studies Program is academically oriented, focusing on promoting interdisciplinary, in-depth, and critical research on Yemen's politics, society, art, culture, and history. The Program also seeks to promote the understanding of peacebuilding approaches in a post-war Yemen and to contribute to advancing effective strategies for achieving long-lasting peace, through dialogue and critical conversations between peacebuilding and conflict-resolution experts, Yemeni civil society actors and experts, as well as organizations involved in Yemen.

Faisal Family Archives

In the course of 2021, the Faisal Family Archives (Darat Al Faisal) completed cataloguing its repository of materials relating to the late King Faisal and his family. The number of images owned by the Darat Al Faisal totaled 20,913 by the end of the year. A further 74 items of video material were catalogued and transcribed and are now stored in the audio-visual section of the collection. The collections team have also finished indexing the magazines containing pictures and news about the late King Faisal and some of his sons. The number of magazines so catalogued now exceeds 1,400 Arab and foreign publications.

King Faisal Family tree, with sons and daughters listed by age from eldest to youngest.

- King Faisal's sons:
- Standing from right:
 - Prince Turki,
 - Prince Bandar,
 - Prince Abdulrahman,
 - Prince Saad
 - Sitting from right:
 - Prince Saud,
 - Prince Mohammed,
 - Prince Abdullah,

The Darat Al Faisal further sought to establish separate collections for the sons and daughters of the late King Faisal, and to this end began the collection and preservation of materials relating to each prince and princess. The staff of the Darat Al Faisal completed their training in the MuseumPlus program, a globally-recognized program for the indexing and documentation of museum materials according to the most developed archival standards, facilitating the task of conservation and maximizing researcher access to archived materials. In order to further preserve the materials presented to the museum by the sons and daughters of the late King Faisal, the staff of the Darat Al Faisal sought the assistance of a British company specializing in the supply of high-quality equipment for the storage of individual museum pieces for long periods of time.

Major Achievements in 2021:

Treatment and Restoration Section

◆ Sterilization

The first stage of preserving historical materials is the elimination of insects and fungi from the pages of documents and manuscripts and their leather bindings, failing which—with the passage of time—their total deterioration may ensue, and other materials stored in close proximity may also be damaged. We conduct this process periodically using the the Al-Faisal Sterilization Device, which uses dry cooling to reduce temperatures to -30°C .

In 2021, the following materials were sterilized:

Conservation

The King Faisal Center for Research and Islamic Studies takes especial care of manuscripts and documents, whether during their acquisition and storage or preservation generally. The Center is justly famous for its expertise in the restoration of paper and for its care for Islamic manuscripts more specifically and has been so since the establishment of a section for manuscript restoration in 1986 under the supervision of a team of British specialists. The staff of the restoration section have undergone extensive specialized training in various aspects of manuscript preservation and restoration.

In 2021, the following materials were restored:

Binding

This is one of the procedures used for preserving manuscripts and printed books following their initial treatment and restoration. The binding department undertakes to re-bind manuscript and books with natural leather and to decorate them with gilt inscriptions.

In 2021:

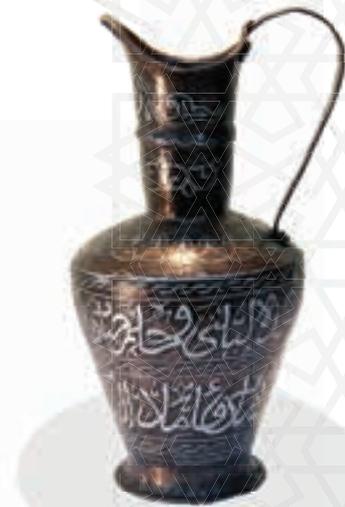

Collection Management Section

◆ Archiving

The archiving process is based on the collection, digitization and archiving of all documents relating to museum pieces, as well as the numbering of all historical items according to each museum collection and the provision of correct descriptions for museum pieces, as per the international guidelines established by the International Council of Museums (ICOM).

In 2021:

- The globally-recognized MuseumPlus electronic archival program was purchased and calibrated to ensure it met the requirements of the Center's museum collections. Staff from the Museum, the Faisal Family Archive and the IT department were trained to use the software.
- 283 audio items were archived.
- 160 items from the King Faisal Memorial Collection were registered and documented.
- A borrowing form was made for requesting items from the former library of Dr Saad Sowayan.

Acquisition

- A model of an oil tanker gifted to King Faisal by a Japanese manufacturing company in 1975 was received from the College of Engineering at King Saud University on February 15, 2021 and was added to the King Faisal Memorial Collection.
- The following items were graciously donated by HRH Princess Sara Al-Faisal on October 19, 2021:
 - Two sheets of paper containing handwritten prayers and remembrance of God.
 - A page from a Hijri calendar for 1 Muharram 1385.
 - A Qur'an copied by al-Sayyid Mustafa Nazif, widely known as Qadrughli.
 - Sections from the prayer manual Dala'il al-khayrat.
 - A calendar for the Hijri year 1342.

Storage

In 2021:

- A storage depot was established in the Saudi Memory Unit for storing audio cassettes in appropriate environmental conditions, so that they are correctly preserved (as opposed to keeping them in wooden drawers, as happened in the past).
- We worked toward achieving best practice in preservation and storage of museum pieces by creating 31 boxes for the storage of audio cassettes in the Saudi Memory Unit, as well as 65 boxes for storing museum items generally.
- 93 volumes of the library of Dr Saad Sowayan were sterilized.

Expert Advice

Expert advice was provided to the Prince Talal bin Abdulaziz Foundation on the storage, preservation and organization of museum items, for the specific purpose of preparing a number of such items for display in the Prince Talal exhibition (God have mercy on him).
